

Let's Use Free Speech To Make Motivational Speaker Debate Marxist

Capitalism is a broken system. It has left us with a world of inequality, poverty, and environmental destruction. We need a new system, one that puts people before profits, and that system is Marxism.

Marxism is a political and economic theory that advocates for a classless, stateless society in which the means of production are owned in common. It is a system that is based on the idea that the working class is the only class that can truly create a just and equitable society.

Motivational speakers are often seen as the epitome of capitalism. They are people who have made a lot of money by telling people how to achieve their dreams. But what if we used their skills to promote Marxism?

Imagine a motivational speaker who used their platform to talk about the evils of capitalism and the benefits of Marxism. They could use their charisma and their ability to connect with people to spread the word about a new way of thinking.

This would be a powerful way to reach people who are not normally exposed to Marxist ideas. It would also be a way to challenge the dominant ideology of capitalism and to show people that there is another way.

Of course, not all motivational speakers would be interested in promoting Marxism. But even if only a few of them were, it would make a big difference. It would help to create a more informed and engaged public, and it would help to build a movement for a better world.
