This comprehensive guidebook provides invaluable insights into the complex phenomenon of migration from the NIS. Drawing upon years of research and analysis, this book offers a detailed exploration of the factors driving migration, the challenges faced by migrants, and the impact of migration on both the sending and receiving countries.

Chapter 1: The Causes of Migration

The first chapter of this book examines the factors that have driven migration from the NIS. These factors include:

- * Economic factors: The economic crisis that followed the collapse of the Soviet Union led to widespread poverty and unemployment in the NIS. This pushed many people to migrate in search of better economic opportunities.
- * Political factors: The political instability and ethnic conflict that plagued the NIS in the early 1990s also contributed to migration. Many people fled their homes to escape violence and persecution.
- * Social factors: The breakdown of social services and the decline in living standards in the NIS also contributed to migration. Many people left their homes in search of a better life for themselves and their families.

Chapter 2: The Challenges of Migration

The second chapter of this book discusses the challenges that migrants from the NIS face. These challenges include:

- * Discrimination and xenophobia: Migrants from the NIS often face discrimination and xenophobia in their new countries. This can make it difficult for them to find jobs, housing, and education.
- * Language barriers: Migrants from the NIS often do not speak the language of their new country. This can make it difficult for them to communicate with others and to access services.
- * Lack of social support: Migrants from the NIS often lack social support in their new countries
