For nearly two decades, I had the privilege of touring the world as the lighting director for the Rolling Stones. It was a wild and unforgettable ride, filled with incredible highs and lows. In this book, I share my firsthand account of life on the road with one of the greatest bands of all time.

I'll take you behind the scenes of some of the Stones' most iconic concerts, including their legendary performances at Hyde Park, Madison Square Garden, and the Super Bowl. You'll meet the band members, the crew, and the fans who made these shows possible.

I'll also share some of the challenges I faced along the way, from dealing with difficult weather conditions to overcoming technical problems. But through it all, I never lost sight of my dream of working with the Rolling Stones. It was an honor to be a part of their team, and I'm grateful for the memories that I made.

Whether you're a lifelong Stones fan or just curious about what it's like to be on the road with a rock and roll band, I hope you'll enjoy this book. It's a story of music, friendship, and the pursuit of a dream.
